Trucking & logistics - coverage overview, limitations and how to get a quote

OVERVIEW

Livestock haulers move live animals that can be injured or die in transit, and carriers ask about the species you haul, loading practices and heat or cold exposure.

WHAT'S COVERED

Livestock cargo
Death or injury of animals from accident or overturn.

Auto liability
Injury and damage to others from your trucks.

Physical damage
Collision and comprehensive for tractors and pot trailers.

Escape and recovery
Animals that escape after an accident.

General liability

Good to know
Livestock cargo usually only pays for death or injury caused by named perils like collision or overturn, so ask about suffocation and heat-stress coverage.
